

Leaving Home in Dark Blue

CHRONICLING OHIO'S CIVIL WAR EXPERIENCE
THROUGH PRIMARY SOURCES & LITERATURE

BUCHTEL BOOKS

Miss Harriet Angel, editor, Recipes by Ladies of St. Paul's Church: A New Edition with a Photo Insert and an Introduction by Jon Miller

Glenna Snow, editor, Glenna Snow's Cook Books: A New Edition with a Photo Insert and an Introduction by Kevin Kern

Mark J. Price, The Rest is History: True Tales from Akron's Vibrant Past

Curt Brown, editor, Leaving Home in Dark Blue: Chronicling Ohio's Civil War Experience Through Primary Sources and Literature

Leaving Home in Dark Blue
CHRONICLING OHIO'S CIVIL WAR EXPERIENCE
THROUGH PRIMARY SOURCES & LITERATURE

CURT BROWN, EDITOR

BUCHTEL BOOKS • AKRON, OHIO

New Material Copyright © 2012 by the University of Akron Press

All rights reserved • First Edition 2012 • Manufactured in the United States of America •
All inquiries and permission requests should be addressed to the Publisher, The University of Akron Press, Akron, Ohio 44325-1703.

16 15 14 13 12 5 4 3 2 1

ISBN 978-1-935603-01-6 (paperback)

LCCN 2011923722

The paper used in this publication meets the minimum requirements of American National Standard for Information Sciences—Permanence of Paper for Printed Library
Materials, ANSI Z39.48-1984. ∞

Cover: Private William F. Bower of Company D, 21st Ohio Regiment Infantry Volunteers, with bayoneted musket, LC-DIG-ppmsca-36856, Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division Washington, D.C. 20540 USA. Cover design by Amy Freels.

Leaving Home in Dark Blue was designed and typeset by Zac Bettendorf, with help from Amy Freels, in Adobe Caslon, printed on sixty-pound natural, and bound by BookMasters of Ashland, Ohio.

Contents

Publisher's Remarks	ix
Foreword	ix
Introduction	xi

1861

1. The Horrible Scourge of Civil War Shall Be Averted	3
2. The Mounting Tensions	5
3. Ohio Responds to Lincoln's Call for Troops	7
4. What a Motley Crew!	9
5. Love Conquers All	10
6. Where O Where is My Joe?	12
7. The Franklin Rifles	22
8. What are Contraband Goods?	24
9. Secession and Schools	25
10. A Fighting They Will Go	27
11. The Sounds of War	29
12. The Escape Route	31
13. You're a Captain Now	35
14. A Degree in Prison Life	37
15. The Enemy in Our Streets	48
16. Caring for the Spirit	49
17. Build a Prison and Confederates Will Come	50
18. How Many Ohioans Can Fight?	52
19. Buried and Betrothed	54

1862

1. A Calm before the Battle	59
2. Please Write. It's Cold and Lonely Out Here.	60
3. A Marching We Will Go!	63
4. The War Must Be Prosecuted with More Vigor	64
5. Supplying the Troops	68
6. A Missouri Hermit	70

7.	Combating Waste and Seeking Retribution	71
8.	Captured in the Lap of Luxury	74
9.	Is There a Doctor in the House?	78
10.	A Grieving Mass of Bleeding Flesh	80
11.	The Ohio Legislature Acts	82
12.	Across the Picket Line in Mississippi	86
13.	A Hero Dismissed	89
14.	Getting the Measles and Being Discovered	91
15.	Orations on the War	92
16.	Giving a Soldier His Due	94
17.	The Boys Go to War; Send Money	95
18.	Squirrel Hunter's Discharge	96
19.	A Fine Wine	97
20.	Searching for Sons and the Truth	99

1863

1.	The Bounds of Disloyalty	103
2.	Taking Up Our Beds	110
3.	Laughing Away the Sorrow	113
4.	A View from the Front Lines	115
5.	Meeting the Enemy	117
6.	Trying a "Traitor"	119
7.	Little Johnny Clem	121
8.	Marching with the Band	123
9.	Keeping the Troops in Line	125
10.	A Rebel in My Boots	127
11.	The Bone Dust Trade	142
12.	Enclosed with Patriotism	145
13.	A Ticket to Ride to the Front	146
14.	The Elevation of the Black Race	147
15.	Presenting the Stars and Stripes	150
16.	The War Rides into Ohio	151
17.	The Death of Ohio Copperheads	154
18.	The Battle above the Clouds	156

1864

1. Re-upping for the Cause	161
2. A Penny at Your Service	163
3. Freed to Fight	166
4. Sons of Ham for Uncle Sam	170
5. Funding the War on the Home Front	173
6. Death Comes Calling	175
7. We Still Need More Troops	178
8. We Can See No Hope	180
9. A Chaplain Returns Home	183
10. Maintaining the Lines	185
11. And What Remains	191
12. An Education in War	193
13. Death and Politics	195

1865

1. Slavery No More	199
2. The Beall in the Booth	201
3. They Laid Aside Their Garments	205
4. Dreams Don't Always Come True	207
5. The War Is Over!	212
6. Give Them Their Horses	218
7. No School	220
8. Slings and Arrows Nevermore	222
9. A Day of Gloom and Sorrow	224
10. The Rod of Correction	226
11. Who's Laughing Now?	228
12. A Separate Land of Their Own	230
13. Penniless and Alone	232
14. The Turtle Has All Kinds of Meat in Him	235
15. Graduating in Peace	237
16. Time to Go Home	239
17. A Free Education	241
18. A Glowing and Delicious Reception Dinner	243
19. The War Will Never Be Forgotten	245
20. On the Roll of Honor Boys	248

Publisher's Remarks

Many collections have been published about the Civil War. Over one hundred and fifty years after the war began, interest has not waned in the rebellion that pitted states and families against each other. What you are about to read is not a comprehensive look at the war, or even a comprehensive look at Ohio's role in that war; this collection brings together a variety of sources to provide a broad, personal picture of historic events. A range of resources—including personal letters, government resolutions, poetry, fiction excerpts, and more—touch on areas that are not always covered by battle reports and standard histories. The material is, by and large, created by Ohioans and remains contemporaneous to the events of the war.

Passages in this collection were transcribed as closely as possible to the original documents. Therefore, they may contain language and usage that is considered offensive today. The publisher and editors do not condone such language and have only reproduced such material in keeping with the book's broad, personal scope; this is a book of historical pieces and the language, usage, spelling, and grammar reflect that.

Foreword

The material collected in this book describes the immediate, human experience of Ohioans during the Civil War. The authors of the majority of these documents were individuals who lived through the war, both on the battlefield and on the home front. The documents often refer to specific historical events, but remain timeless because of the individual, human element. The result is an intensely readable, chronological overview of how Ohioans were affected by and involved in the war of the rebellion. Far from comprehensive, the focus in Leaving Home is on the common individual (although more prominent or recognizable characters also make appearances). These are the stories of men, women, and children from various walks of life and economic conditions who took part in military service or served on the home front.

Introductions and annotations are included to clarify the material and help modern audiences relate to these historical works. Prominent events are noted in the “A Nation at War” features, which provide a timeline to help contextualize the pieces. Much of the material is collected and published here for the first time; other material is republished for the first time since the initial publication over one hundred years ago. This collection serves as reminder of the roles that Ohioans played in the war and details the war on an intimate level through an overall emphasis on personal experience.

Many people helped see this project through from idea to completion and without their help this book would not exist. Special thanks to Nick Sturm, Abby Thompson, and Michael Goroff for meticulous research, compilation, writing, and editing. In addition, thanks to Zac Bettendorf for the design and Nathan Kemp, Kaana Lewis, Katelyn Mertz, David Poole, and Krystal Williams for research assistance. Thank you to the staff of The University of Akron Press—Thomas Bacher, Amy Freels, and Carol Slatter—for directing, refining, and guiding this book to completion. Most importantly, thank you to the authors of these materials for documenting their experience and allowing us an unparalleled view into the past through their words.

Curt Brown, Lead Editor

Introduction

From "Ohio in the Civil War" by General John Beatty

Source: Henry Howe, Historical Collections of Ohio: In Two Volumes, An Encyclopedia of the State. Columbus: Howe, 1889.

It would be impossible to make an exact estimate of the number of men who entered the National army from Ohio during the war for the preservation of the Union. Those embraced in regimental and company organizations of the State can, of course, be enumerated, and, with some degree of accuracy, followed to the time of their death, discharge, or final muster out; but these organizations did not by any means include all the patriotic citizens of Ohio who left peaceful homes to incur the risks of battle for the maintenance of national authority. Five regiments credited to West Virginia were made up in large part of Ohio men; the same may be said of two regiments credited to Kentucky; also of the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Massachusetts Colored Infantry, and of two regiments of United States colored troops [the 5th and 27th U.S.C.T]. In addition to those enrolled in regiments credited to other States, thousands entered the gun-boat service, of whom Ohio has no record, while other thousands enlisted in the regular army.

According to Ohio General J. Warren Keifer, "From the best prepared statistics of the Provost Marshal-General and Adjutant-General of the U. S. A. and the Adjutant-General of Ohio, excluding reenlistments, 'squirrel-hunters' and militia, and including a low estimate for regular enlistments in the army and navy not credited to Ohio, it is found that Ohio furnished of her citizens 840,000 men of all arms of the service for war; reduced to a department standard, they represent 240,000 three-years soldiers."

The State contributed in organized regiments:

26 regiments of infantry	for three months.
43 regiments of infantry	for 100 days.
2 regiments of infantry	for six months.
27 regiments of infantry	for one year.
117 regiments of infantry	for three years.
13 regiments of cavalry	for three years.
3 regiments of artillery	for three years.

To these should be added twenty-six independent batteries of artillery, and five independent companies of cavalry.

6,536 Ohio soldiers were killed outright in battle.
 4,674 were mortally wounded and subsequently died in hospital.
 13,354 died of disease contracted in the service.
 In brief, 84 Ohio soldiers out of every 1,000 enlisted men lost their lives in the war of the rebellion.

General Keifer also notes, "The total losses in battle of all kinds in both the American and British armies in the seven years' war of the Revolution, excluding only the captured at Saratoga and Yorktown, is 21,526. This number falls 4,000 below Ohio's deadlist [sic] alone during the late war. . . . The loss of Ohio officers is known to have reached 872, nearly ten per cent, of the grand total of officers. . . ."

No army ever had a more abundant and sympathetic support than that accorded by the loyal men and women of the North, who carried forward with intense energy the ordinary business of civil life, while sons, brothers and husbands were in the field. Indeed, when we consider that more than one-half of the adult male population of Ohio was in the army, and that probably one-half of those who remained at home were unfitted by age or physical infirmity for military service, and that very many others were held to their farms and offices by business obligations, which could not be honorably disregarded, or family ties it would have been cruelty to sunder, we shall be at some loss to determine whether those who by their industry and liberality made it possible for an army to live, are entitled to less or more credit from the country than those who fought its battles and won its victories. . . .

The population of Ohio probably represented more nearly than that of any other State, the people of all the older sections of the Union. Settlers from New England and New York predominated in the Western Reserve. Pennsylvania had peopled the eastern counties; Virginia and Kentucky the southern and southwestern; and so we find that [Ulysses S.] Grant's father and [William S.] Rosecrans's came from Pennsylvania; [William T.] Sherman's and [David] Tod's from Connecticut; [James B.] McPherson's and [James A.] Garfield's from New York; [Irvin] McDowell's, Kentucky; [William] Dennison's, New Jersey; [Quincy A.] Gillmore's, Massachusetts; [Edwin M.] Stanton's, North Carolina; while [Salmon P.] Chase was born in New Hampshire, and [Jacob] Ammen, [Benjamin] Brice, and [John C. Tidball] Tibball were natives of Virginia.

INTRODUCTION

It was thus on Ohio soil that the people North and South first met and fraternized, and by their united and harmonious efforts transformed, within less than half a century, an unbroken wilderness into a rich and powerful State.

Editor's Note: General Beatty's introduction provides a brief but comprehensive overview of Ohioans' roles in the Civil War. Through these numbers and lists, it is possible to gain a view of exactly how encompassing and momentous the war was. With Ohio as microcosm, the ubiquitous transformation that the country underwent is clear, as are the devastating effects of war on a personal level. The individual's experience is the central theme of this book and is reflective of the experiences and accounts that are collected here.